

MATT BRAGMAN

School Administrator/Parent

Matt Bragman is a teacher, school Principal, and leader in student mental health whose life and career is focused on strong schools and student success. He is a parent in our local schools. As a public school teacher and Principal, Matt worked on the front lines of public education and has taken that experience to a national non-profit focused on student mental health.

Matt believes innovation and attention to student needs are the keys to unlocking student potential and revitalizing our public schools.

He is committed to bringing his experience, vision, and innovation to our local schools and will:

- Ensure all budget decisions are centered on students and educational programs

- Strive to secure additional resources for our schools

- Prioritize student safety and school climate by focusing on social and mental health, counseling, and community

- Make sure that relevant educational programs and resources are accessible to all students to prepare them for success in college, careers, and life

As an educator, innovator, and leader in student health, Matt will always prioritize our students and ensure they have the support and resources needed to thrive.

That's why Matt is supported by local classroom teachers, parents, and community leaders.
