

NATALIE MOSER

City Councilmember, City of Huntington Beach

The future of Huntington Beach is up to us. We could elect leaders who care more about their political agendas and outside self interests, or we can work together to protect our freedoms and put residents first.

Born and raised here, I'm a small business owner, parent, and product of everything Huntington Beach has to offer – our exceptional schools, beautiful beaches, and safe neighborhoods.

Throughout my life, I've overcome hard challenges and won. After graduating from Marina High School, I worked multiple jobs to put myself through college and earned my MBA from Chapman University. After years of success in the financial services industry, I decided to build my own business.

Then, with the support of my family and doctors, I overcame and survived breast cancer. I'll take that same determination and work ethic to solve problems, not sow division and chaos.

I'm fed up with the negative headlines and culture wars waged by extremists who seek to tear us apart. I'll continue my focus on local results by supporting first responders, ensuring our library and parks are accessible, tackling homelessness, and restoring civility at city hall.

I hope to earn your vote and fight for a Huntington Beach we can all be proud of.
