

CHRIS LOWE

Educator/Businessowner/Parent

My children all graduated from or currently attend Placentia-Yorba Linda Unified School District schools, just like I did. At Chapman University, I currently teach graduate students and have served as:

Assistant Dean

Director of Executive Education

Founding Director of a master's program in the College of Business and Economics

At the Richard Nixon Foundation, my work includes developing civics education platforms for students from 3rd grade to college and launching the new American Civics Academy to expand civics education nationally. I worked for Governor Pete Wilson, helping launch California's landmark 1996 Class Size Reduction Initiative.

As a former Mayor, I championed reopening an elementary school and authored a civic history book and engagement program for 3rd graders. Even in college, I cared deeply about education policy, serving on the California State University System Board of Trustees.

I'm a concerned parent, educator, taxpayer, and small business owner who is profoundly worried about the state of the Placentia-Yorba Linda Unified School District: outstanding teachers leaving, ongoing budget deficits, and frequent leadership turnover. Cal State Fullerton is so concerned that they've stopped placing student teachers in Placentia-Yorba Linda Unified School District schools.

If elected as your Placentia-Yorba Linda Unified School District Trustee, I will:

Protect academic opportunities

Recruit and retain great teachers

Prioritize special education

Strengthen school safety

Restore fiscal stability
