Small Businessman/Coach

DEMOCRATICAGE: 44

Are you fed up with politicians unwilling to fight for you? Because I am.

I've had enough of MAGA extremism and attacks on our fundamental rights and democracy. I've had enough of Sacramento gridlock preventing us from addressing the cost of living and the solutions California needs. And I've had enough of politicians who put corporate special interests first while everyday people are left behind.

We need leaders willing to stand up for people, even when it costs them personally. I've done that my entire life. In the NFL, I spoke out for marriage equality when it wasn't popular, and it cost me my career. I fought book bans in Huntington Beach's libraries, faced personal attacks, and we won. I'd do it again in a heartbeat because standing up for what's right matters.

I'm not a politician. Raised in Seal Beach in a middle-class family, I attended public schools and earned an athletic scholarship to UCLA. Now, as a small businessman and coach raising two kids in Huntington Beach with my wife, I'm concerned the American dream is becoming out of reach for too many working families in California.

In the Assembly, I'll focus on tackling affordability, strengthening education, protecting our rights and environment, and defending our democracy, freedom, and the rule of law.

I'm proud to be backed by teachers, nurses, healthcare professionals, and many other unions. I also earned the official endorsement of the California Democratic Party.

I'll fight for you. I'd be honored to earn your vote.
