

MEMBER OF THE STATE SENATE, 35TH DISTRICT

NAME: GINNY MAYER

OCCUPATION: Educator

The 35th Senate District has magnificent beaches, major manufacturing and high tech firms, desirable residential communities, and a world-class university. Yet it is not immune to current economic problems; I am running for office to find smart solutions. As a Harvard-educated college instructor, with corporate managerial experience, my goal is to use my analytical and leadership skills to promote these solutions.

I will fight "pain at the pump" and its impacts as well as working to preserve our coastlines and wetlands by strengthening California's leadership role in technological innovation. Investing in green collar jobs will stimulate economic growth and will ultimately help in reducing dependency on foreign oil as well as fighting global warming and environmental destruction.

We pay "hidden costs" for healthcare for the uninsured, and for treating preventable conditions after they have become crises. Making businesses responsible for providing healthcare insurance hurts their bottom line. I will work to ensure universal access to quality healthcare to promote public well-being and to eliminate these unnecessary costs and obstacles to global competitiveness.

Education is the key to economic competitiveness in the 21st Century. I am committed to improving educational quality in public schools and promoting access for working adults in need of retraining or career enhancement.

We can balance the budget and promote economic competitiveness while addressing the needs of Californians. We need smart solutions to accomplish this, not the same old business as usual; that is why I am asking for your vote.
